SEX GAMES

Sex games are a great way to spice things up and start conversation. If a topic arises that you're interested in, use that as an opportunity for discussion and experimentation. The worst thing that can happen is your partner say no. Then you roll the dice and try the next thing that pops up. Remember to keep an open mind.

LUBRICANT

Everyone should have a good bottle of lube! Water-based lubricant is ideal for all forms of sex and is perfectly safe for use with sex toys. Silicone lube is super long-lasting and suitable for partner sex. Hybrid lube is the best of both worlds, lasting longer than water-based, but still safe for your toys.

KINKY STUFF

40% of people experiment with some type of BDSM. Most people think that BDSM means pain, but that is absolutely not the case. Start out slow with something like a blindfold, or easy-to-use Velcro restraints. You will be surprised how giving up control can change your entire experience. Do you get bored? Change up the dynamic. Was your partner in control? Now you be the dominant. Was the blindfold not enough? Add in a flogger or a vibrator to tease in the most delightful way. The best thing about BDSM is the many aspects that can be experimented with until you find what's right for you. Remember to talk about your limits and DON'T FORGET to designate a safe word.

LAY-ON RABBIT

The perfect external sex toy! The Lay-On Rabbit's wide curved body fits perfectly in the palm of your hand and follows the gentle curve of her body.
