COLLAR

A collar is a great way to initiate the beginning of a scene. When the collar is placed on you by your dom, you enter the subspace. You remain in the subspace until the end of the scene or when you use the safe word. Keep in mind; you don't have to use a traditional collar; you can use a necklace or something different as long as its something you put on to set the mood, kind of like a super suit.

BLINDFOLD

A blindfold can be a very exciting addition to a role play scene because it takes away your sense of sight. Not only does this make all of your other senses more heightened, which can make pleasure more intense, but it also allows you to utilize your imagination. So if your fantasy is to be ravished by Jason Momoa, then pull that blindfold down, and imagine your husband is a whole other man.

COSTUME

A costume is essential to a good role play scene. It helps you get out of your head and frees your inhibitions, just like when Bruce Wayne puts on Batman's bat-suit.

FLOGGER

Incorporating a little pain into your role play is very common. A fantastic tool for beginner impact play is a flogger. It looks sexy, it makes a great noise, and even if you strike someone hard, it doesn't hurt too much. Just remember to stick to the body's muscly areas, like the upper back, chest, thighs, and butt.

DILDO OR MASTURBATION SLEEVE

A threeway is a common fantasy. However, inviting someone into your bedroom can come with baggage if you do not have clear boundaries and good communication. One way to "have your cake and eat it too" is to utilize a dildo or masturbation sleeve instead. Pair either with your blindfold, and you are limited only by your imagination.

PADDLE

Another common type of impact play is spanking. What better than a spanking when you've been a little naughty? We recommend using a paddle for a spanking instead of your hand, specifically a paddle with fur on one side. After you punish your partner for being bad, you can then flip the paddle over and soothe those red stinging cheeks with the soft furry side. One tip when it comes to any impact play is to tell the receiver how many licks they're going to get, so they know when it's going to stop. If you tell your partner, you're going to get ten licks, and by number seven, it's starting to sting, they know they only have three more to go. Otherwise, the bottom might be more inclined to tap out and use their safe word.

HANDCUFFS

An easy and fun way to get a little kinky is to restrain your partner, leaving them at your mercy. What better tool for that than a pair of handcuffs? The role-play scenarios are endless—bounty hunter and fugitive, cop and robber, prison guard and naughty inmate. You can also strap your partner to the bed and tease, tickle, and torture them until they can't take it anymore. Handcuffs are the must-have naughty bedroom accessory. Just remember that safety is sexy, so buy the kind with an emergency release because accidents can happen.
